EMPLOYMENT EXPERIENCE

2001-2007: I have been employed in various retail and hospitality businesses learning how to serve and interact with customers. I also gained a variety of skills and experiences that were valuable as a teacher and a tutor, including how to focus my actions and thoughts on satisfying and pleasing others through personal interaction and conversation over the phone.

2003-2010: Private English Tuition

Over this period I taught over 50 students through individual one-to-one English tutoring. Their ages ranged from elementary school to first year university. Those who were not fluent in English were assisted with grammar, writing, reading and conversational English. Those who were fluent, were assisted with school work and preparation for their university studies. I made many valuable relationships over this time with students as well as parents, and I still keep in contact with a majority of them to this day.

2008-2010: Tuition College English Teacher

Over this period I taught privately as well as at an institution. I taught over 15 different classes with a general timetable of 3 teaching days per week and 2 classes per day. In my second year at this college I was put in charge of the high school English program which included teaching as well as organizing and developing teaching materials. The material focused on improving grammar, reading, writing (prominently essay writing) and speaking. At the college, I aspired not only to be a good teacher but also a mentor for my students; someone that the students could respect and learn more than just English from. With several students, I took the time to converse with them before or after class, either to give them extra help with school work or even advice on personal agendas and issues.
